In the schools of modern Japan, Physical Education occupies an important place in the course. Teachers and pupils set out on walking tours, carrying their own provisions with them and get accustomed to rough weather. The Japanese would come out very high if a proper test of physical fitness were to be held throughout the world. As regards their history, they are today as intensely proud of it as ever before and pay a very great attention to the making and preserving of their national records.

In personal cleanliness there is no nation today that comes up to the Japanese. Not to be clean is considered a great social crime by the rich and the poor alike; consequently Japanese houses are the neatest and cleanest dwellings in the world.

Questions :

- (1) What place does the physical education occupy in the schools of Japan ?
- (2) How do the teachers and students get accustomed to rough weather ?
- (3) How do the Japanese look upon their history ?
- (4) What is the view of the Japanese about cleanliness ?
- (5) Suggest a suitable title for the passage.
